MUSIC is arranged by the funeral director with musicians and singers approved by Sacred Heart Church. The use of the church and the services of the clergy are without charge. Musicians and singers do charge a fee. A frank discussion should be held with your funeral director about what you want and how much you want in the way of music and song. The availability of those who play and sing on weekends at Sacred Heart is controlled by their weekday jobs and other factors. All recorded music and any songs that have only a secular meaning should be reserved for the luncheon. Mrs. Robin Graham, Parish Manager: 445-2497 x14 can assist you and the funeral director in planning for this important part of the funeral.

READINGS are found beginning on page 37 of Through Death to Life; or <http://www.usccb.org/prayer-and-worship/bereavement-and-funerals/readings-for-the-funeral-liturgy.cfm> Please choose carefully and return this form with your choices clearly indicated to Mrs. Graham or the priest conducting your loved one's funeral as soon as practical. Ideally, the readers you choose have this ministry at their home, Catholic parish so that they are well trained to proclaim the Word of God or lead the General Intercessions. Readers should come empty-handed to the pulpit during the service! N.B. on SOME, not all Sundays and other special days the readings assigned to the day must be used. You will be notified and given copies for the readers to prepare.

Check one of the patterns, below. Then, choose the reading(s), Psalm and Gospel you wish that fit the pattern you want to follow.

Tributes, poems, letters, reflections and eulogies of every kind have an important and proper place at the wake service or outside the time of the funeral service. If you or anyone is planning to speak, the Catholic clergyman leading the service must be notified well in advance of the service. Who? What? When?

---

Special Requests for the homilist.... Is there something you want highlighted in particular or is there something that you want avoided?

---

Universal Prayers (General Intercessions) on pages 92-93 (H-2) are the set we commonly use since it is the pattern and words to which most in this area are accustomed.
Who will read the part of the "Assisting minister"? _____ (Note that the third and fourth are skipped.)

When there is a funeral Mass...

The Gifts of Bread and Wine may be brought in procession. If you want to have family or friends participate, at least two or a small group may form a procession. Who have you invited to exercise this ministry?

Eucharistic Servers from among your family and friends are welcome, even those not from our parish. Who have you invited to exercise this ministry? Three are ideal and eight is the maximum including all deacons and priests.
